Sadako Peace Day

Send a Message for Peace

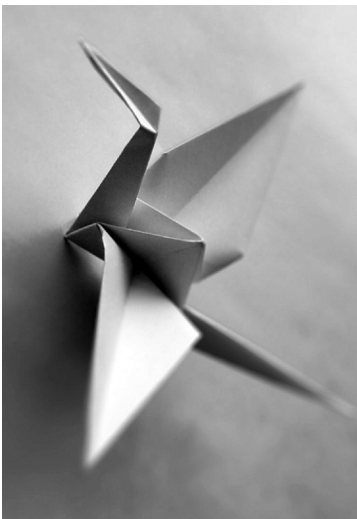

The idea of changing a world plagued by war and the spread of nuclear weapons usually goes straight into the “too-hard” file of our brains. But that’s just a perception. That fact is, we can change the world. And we can start by changing our attitudes about what we can achieve.

OK, you might say, but what can I do right now to make a difference for peace? Easy. Make your voice heard.

Send us your message or prayer for Sadako Peace Day 2007. All you have to do is go to our website www.wagingpeace.org – you’ll find all the directions you need and it will only take you a few minutes. We’ll post the messages on our website, choose some of the best to read at our ceremony on August 9 and forward every single message to the President of the United States of America.

Change Service Requested

Sadako was a two-year-old girl when the atomic bomb was dropped on Hiroshima. Ten years later she developed leukemia. Japanese legend holds that one’s wish will be granted upon folding 1,000 paper (origami) cranes. Sadako folded 646 before dying. She wrote, “I will write peace on your wings, and you will fly all over the world.” Her friends finished folding the cranes in her memory. The paper crane has become a global symbol of peace, and a statue of Sadako now stands in Hiroshima Peace Memorial Park.
